THE RELEVANCE OF CURRENT AND NEW ACCOUNTING STANDARDS TO THE CURRENT ECONOMIC CLIMATE IN THE SHIPPING INDUSTRY

Moore Stephens, widely acknowledged as the world's leading financial/accounting advisors to the Shipping Industry, used a seminar held on Tuesday 17 September 2013 at the Al Bustan Rotana to highlight and clarify to senior shipping personnel the details and impact of those International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) most relevant to regional shipping companies.

The approximate 100 attendees represented a broad spectrum of the regional shipping fraternity ranging from ship overseas, to brokers, to ship managers, to liner companies. With the difficulties experienced in the past five to six years in freight rates and vessel values arising from the slow down in the Global economy and international trade there have been quite a number of issues arising in financial reporting. In particular issues relating to vessel impairment, residual values and useful lives for the purpose of depreciation calculations, lease accounting, accounting for interest expenses, the treatment of dry docking and related questions.

The key speakers were from the Shipping Department of Moore Stephens Offices in London and the topics covered following an initial overview of global shipping and IFRS were 'accounting for ships', 'financing issues', 'risk management', and finally 'a summary of recent and future accounting developments'.

John Adcock, a Partner in the Dubai Office of Moore Stephens said in an interview that Moore Stephens has accumulated an unparalleled depth of knowledge and unrivalled experience and were therefore in a unique position to provide comprehensive and confidential range of business development services and traditional support services to the industry.

John continued to explain that Moore Stephens development internationally arose from active work in the shipping industry, which began in London in the 1930's when they acted for Greek ship owners and thereby establishing themselves as specialists in the City of London at that time. From those early days in the industry, they provided all the services necessary for shipping clients to operate effectively. The depth of knowledge is supported by the fact that Moore Stephens currently provide accounting and/or audit services for over 2,000 single vessel-owning companies through member firms of Moore Stephens International Limited all over the world.

Michael Simms, a London Shipping Partner said that the knowledge gained is further supported by the fact that Moore Stephens have member firms in all of the principal shipping locations throughout the world enabling a truly international service to clients. Clients range from large multinational corporations to single vessel owners, and include not only ship owners but ports, brokers, ship managers, port agents and logistics operators and, of course, shipping funds, with offices globally.

Another London based Partner Robert Noye – Allen a specialist in risk management, also gave a session on how senior management and those charged with Governance can improve the formal process of identifying and mitigating risk by the use of Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) software. Robert provided examples of identified risks such as crewing, safety, environmental regulatory and explained the process of identification and mitigation.

One of most significant changes in IFRS is that relating to the accounting for leases. There have been considerable discussions relating to a number of disclosure drafts, but Jamie Tomkins of the Moore Stephens London Technical Department indicated that it is likely that there will be significant amendments from the first drafts and anyway it is unlikely to be operative for another three to four years.

Those attending were grateful to have a seminar that was designed specifically for their industry and the response of most was for more Industry specific seminars of this nature.

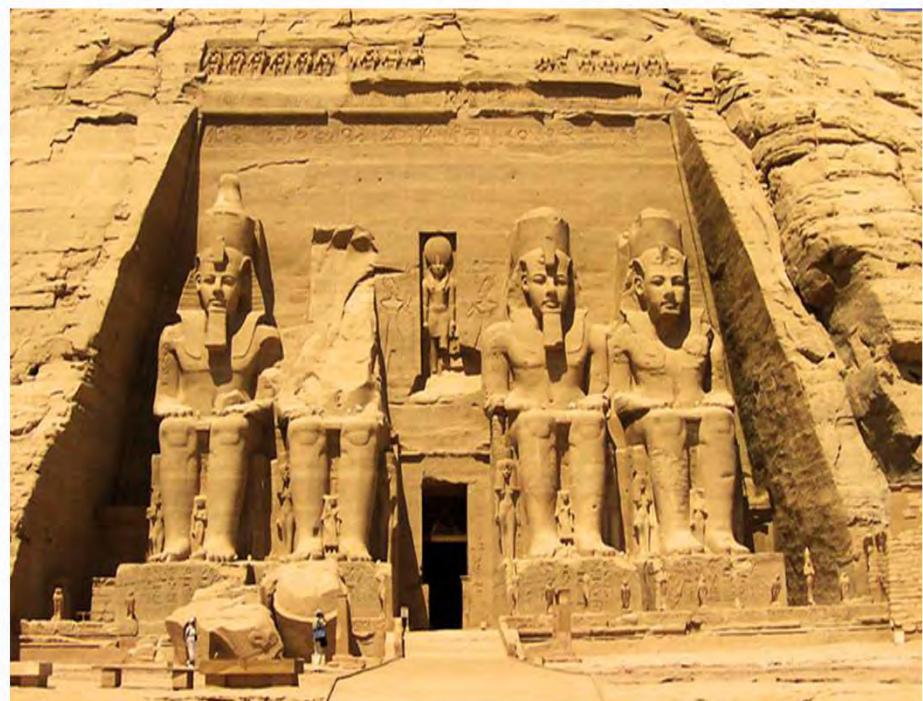

EGYPT

Recent changes to withholding tax (WHT) laws

Law no. 11 of 2013 has resulted in a number of changes to the WHT laws which took effect from 1 June 2013.

The new law requires all business entities set up under the special economic zone and free zone laws to withhold tax on interest, royalties, service fees and sporting activity and artists' fees. The tax withheld must be remitted to the Egypt tax authority on the first working day following the day the tax was withheld. Late payment penalties will be payable thereafter. WHT due on interest will also apply to any bonds issued by the Ministry of Finance and to treasury bills and bonds. WHT paid on treasury bills and bond interest shall be deducted from the income tax payable by the income earning entity, based on the taxable amount as recorded in the financial statements and reported in the tax declaration. Such deduction shall not exceed the total tax due on taxable profits. The law requires entities liable to withhold tax payments under Article 59/1 of law 91 of 2005, to add a percentage to the amount to be collected from a payee. This percentage should then be deducted from the amount payable and accounted for as WHT deducted from the payee. The WHT and addition system also applies to corporations and foreign branches that sell crops, goods and manufactured products to private sector entities, for the purpose of trading or manufacturing. Also the new law requires the entities withholding tax payments under Article 59/1, to apply WHT due on rental payments paid by lessees who conduct business activities relating to trading, manufacturing and provision of any services, food and beverages. This percentage should be collected with rental amount and submitted under the tax account of the lessees.

Foreign Investment Policy 2013

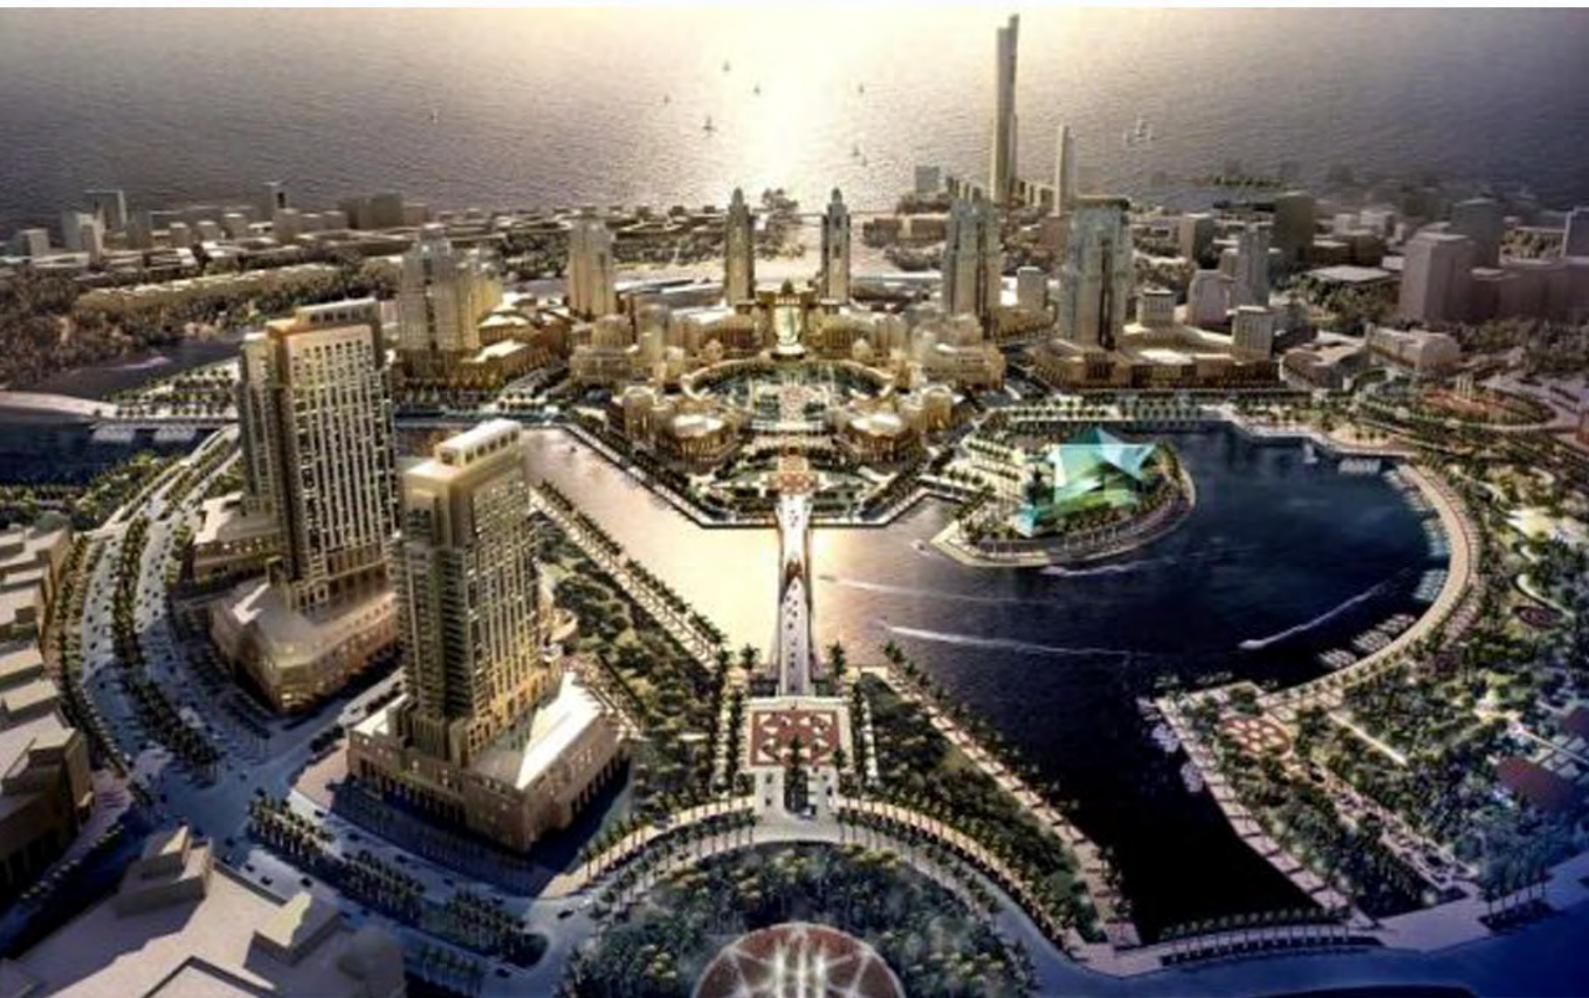

Foreign Investment Policy 2013 is in place in Pakistan. The foreign direct investment is freely allowed in almost all sectors, with an exception of few industries of national security and public safety. The significant change introduced in the new investment policy, is the waiver of minimum equity capital requirement in all commercial sectors of the economy. Also there is removal of upper percentage limit of ownership, except in few sectors including like airline, banking and media.

FDI policy for real estate sector has also been relaxed and now there is no difference in rules and regulations for local and foreign real estate developers. Further 100% foreign investment is permitted in Corporate Agriculture Farming (CAF); previously the limit was 60%.

Pakistan has vast potential for foreign investors in almost all sectors of economy but specially in conventional and alternate energy, infrastructure, transport and telecom sectors.

NEW KUWAIT COMMERCIAL COMPANIES LAW

December 2012 - the new Companies Law is published and replaces the Commercial Companies Law of 1960.

Existing commercial entities will need to assess if changes will have to be made to their current structures to comply with the new law, companies have a six-month grace period to conform to the new regulations from the date of publication.

Greater emphasis on corporate governance and transparency and reduction in "red tape" for establishing new businesses.

Key changes

- one-stop shop for the incorporation and licensing of a company through a single department at the ministry of commerce and industry.
- the law requires a more stringent adherence to best practices of corporate governance.
- separation of the board of directors from the executive management
- expansion of the powers of managers and directors
- introduction of corporate regulations regarding sukuk, bonds and convertible bonds.
- elimination of minimum shareholding requirements and security shares for members of the boards of directors of stock companies,
- adoption of the cumulative voting system for the election of board members.

One point that will remain unchanged, however, is the existing restrictions on foreign ownership and the principle of a minimum 51-per-cent Kuwaiti shareholding in the capital of Kuwait companies.
